WELCOME!

Oxford University Press is pleased to announce the launch of the new Oxford Legal Research Library.

Oxford Legal Research Library (OLRL) is a new family of products from Oxford University Press, providing integrated access across collections of key titles in a variety of subject areas. Initially launching in April 2014 with two collections (covering International Commercial Arbitration, and International Commercial Law) the family will be extended later in 2014 to include a further two collections, covering Private International Law and Financial Law. Each collection can be browsed and searched separately, or users with a subscription to more than one collection can choose to search them together via the OLRL family interface.

The OLRL collections aim to speed up your research and provide easy access to authoritative content, and are an essential purchase for anyone currently performing research in these areas of law and practice.

With the publication of our key International commercial law and arbitration works, and improvements in user functionality, we are excited to introduce legal researchers around the globe to this essential resource. The development of the Oxford Legal Research Library underlines Oxford’s commitment to the dissemination of scholarship, with enhanced functionality enabling flexible user journeys through an increased range of content. These features reflect the evolution of user requirements in a rapidly-shifting digital environment, with more intuitive search tools, and better linking to related content.

Please don’t hesitate to get in touch with us or the Oxford University Press marketing team, if you would like to share your thoughts or views. We look forward to hearing your feedback.

Yours sincerely,

Andy Redman

A NEW PLATFORM FOR LAW

LEADING LAW TITLES ACROSS A VARIETY OF SUBJECTS

Oxford Legal Research Library (OLRL) is a new family of products from Oxford University Press, providing integrated access across collections of key law titles in a variety of subject areas. OLRL currently includes two collections, International Commercial Arbitration and International Commercial Law, and the family will be extended later in 2014 to include a further two collections, Private International Law and Financial Law.

Each collection can be browsed and searched separately, or users with access to both products can choose to search them together via the OLRL family interface. The OLRL collections aim to speed up research and provide easy access to authoritative content, and are an essential resource for anyone currently performing research in these areas of law and practice.

In addition, each collection provides integrated access to leading reference works and treatises, supported by the Oxford Law Citator for linking and onward research. New works, new editions, and supplements will be added to each collection as they are published, ensuring that the OLRL provides comprehensive, authoritative, and up-to-date coverage and analysis of law, practice, and procedure.

WORLD-CLASS AUTHORS, BREADTH AND DEPTH OF COVERAGE

Each collection found on OLRL offers the highest level legal monographs written by top authors in each field of study, creating a research portal that in unrivaled online today. Individual chapters, signed by top scholars in their field, cover the key issues and major debates in arbitration, commercial law, financial law, and private international law. In the culture of information overload, bringing these historic and authoritative resources online is more important than ever before.

To provide editorial guidance and ensure continued quality of our digital publishing, OLRL will be updated regularly to ensure the quality, accuracy, and objectivity of the content in each collection.
International Commercial Arbitration

BRINGING TOGETHER THE LEADING WORKS IN THE FIELD

International Commercial Arbitration (ICMA) is hosted on the Oxford Legal Research Library platform and features some of the leading works in the field and represents an exceptional resource for the arbitration researcher. Underpinned by two key authoritative reference works:

International Commercial Arbitration Titles

INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL ARBITRATION TITLES

All ICMA titles contain analytic material and are authoritative reference works dealing with the application of international commercial arbitration. Treatises and monographs which provide important and authoritative statements on the current state of law and practice-oriented analysis as to how, and why, it is developing in particular ways. Oxford will add new titles from our publishing programme that meet one of these criteria and are relevant to international commercial arbitration.

HOW TO MARKET THE OXFORD LEGAL RESEARCH LIBRARY TO YOUR PATRONS

Oxford University Press is here to help you through this transition; below are just a few ways that we can help you market the new Oxford Legal Research Library site to your patrons. Please contact us if we can be of any further assistance.

IN LIBRARY SUPPORT – A variety of promotional items are available to you free of charge to help you promote the new Oxford Legal Research Library site within your institution. Please visit oxfordonline.com for additional information or contact onlinemarketing@oup.com.

TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES – we are pleased to offer live demonstrations and training sessions hosted by our product expert, introducing you to the new Oxford Legal Research Library. Demonstrations are conducted using a service called WebEx – all you need is a phone and a computer with an internet connection. On-site training opportunities can also be arranged where necessary. Please contact us at online.training@oup.com for additional details or to schedule a demonstration.

GUIDED TOUR - a guided tour will be available on the site in both PowerPoint and PDF format at launch.

INCREASE YOUR USAGE – we would be happy to provide you with an email template, which you can then use to let your faculty know that the Oxford Legal Research Library has launched. Please contact us at lawonline.uk@oup.com for further information.

TELL US WHAT YOU THINK Do you have any suggestions on how we could improve this transitional process for you? Please let us know at lawonline.uk@oup.com.
